We, three Departments in Graduate School of Engineering, the University of Tokyo, offer opportunities for advanced study and research to international students under "the Special Graduate Program in Engineering for Systems Innovation" and "the Special Graduate Program in Nuclear Engineering." The programs offer (two-year) Master's and (three-year) Doctoral courses leading to the corresponding degrees in the three departments. Students accepted to the program will be enrolled in the next winter semester, which will begin on October 1, 2012. Lectures and instructions for research are given generally in English. Japanese language courses are optionally available.

ELIGIBILITY

The applicant who is eligible for admission to the Master's course must hold a Bachelor's degree from an accredited institution, and the one who is eligible for admission to the Doctoral course must hold a Master's Degree or its equivalent. The age of the applicant must be under 35 on April 1, 2012 and the applicant must be a citizen of a country the Japanese government has diplomatic relations. Military personnel and military civilian employees are not eligible. A person with more than one nationality cannot become a MEXT scholarship student.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT

About ten successful students will be awarded a scholarship from MEXT, Japanese Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology. The scholarship covers living expenses (the amounts of monthly stipend is 155,000 yen for Master's course or 156,000 yen for Doctoral course if your place of research will be in Tokyo — that are subject to change depending upon the annual budget of each year) and a round-trip air ticket. Awardees are also exempted from both entrance fees and tuition fees.
